Showreels are becoming quite popular these days. Studies are showing that web users are doing a lot less reading and a lot more scanning. Users are more likely going to look at media oriented content on your website such as images and video, rather than really getting to know your literature. That is why we have focused our attention on website video showreels to deliver the overall message. Showreels don't necessarily tell the whole story, but instead leave your visitor with a good idea about what it is you do. Check out our showreel for an example:
